THE SERVICEMAN'S CORNER:

Hello, fellas. Lately we have been hearing some grumbling, (and rightly so!) from you G.I.'s--in regards your lack of rights because this isn't a "declared" war. Well, we decided to do something about it--we wrote a letter to our Congressman (and that's no joke, son!) Thought you might like to know what we wrote--so here 'tis:

****

THE BYLINE, May 17

Dear Congressman Anderson:

It has come to our attention that the soldier of today is not getting a fair deal. It seems that because was has not been formally declared--those boys now in Korea cannot expect the same rights and privileges as Veterans of declared wars. But we note that they are getting killed just as dead, and wounded just as painfully, as any veteran of any other war--declared or otherwise. We are specifically referring to the G.I.BILL OF RIGHTS. A young man we know is now in the [illegible], and he tells us that he can expect no guarantee of education after this fracas is over.

This reminds us of the recent issue in which a wounded serviceman was denied entrance to a Veteran's Hospital on the grounds that he was not a veteran of any declared war. We note that he was finally admitted to that hospital after a Bill was hurriedly passed for just such emergencies. We feel that the minds of these young men are just as important to them in their future lives as their bodies; therefore, we are asking that something also be done in the matter of educational rights for these soon-to-be veterans of our undeclared war!

Yours very truly,

GLADYS REECE, editor.

There you are, kids. Now--if we can just get some of these other armchair generals up off their verandahs, maybe we'll get some action! After all, we do feel that you fellows who really want an education, are entitled to just what you want. If you can go out and fight for us, by golly we can go all out and fight for you! We fully expect to welcome you back as good citizens, and honest voters--and a GOOD citizen is an educated one!

Now for some last minute news. We hear that Eddie Rolland is going overseas soon. And [illegible] Hatch is being transferred again--to northern California. Still have not heard from Mickey Hunter. Bye now.--THE EDITOR

THE WONDERFUL PENNY--by Elizabeth Alice Theis---CHAPTER XI:

Armies of tin soldiers that made Bunny catch his breath in ecstacy passed on review. Cannons drawn by prancing horses; Indians in warpaint; ships with sails that were drawn by oxen hitched to sturdy floats; games that were waving long, gangling arms in greeting; battleships rolling along on immense trucks, their drivers being gibbering monkeys in suits of red and green.

On, on came the toys! Sailor-boy dolls in blue and white; officers in splendid uniform; log cabins that rolled along on wheels; pussy-cats all dressed up like dainty housewives; bugs and beetles and birds and fish giving full vividness to the Parade of Toys. There was not a thing missing; the busy little dwarfs had left nothing unfinished. Toys from every land were fully represented.

Queer little Dresden china cups and saucers so fragile it seemed they would surely break with every step of their dainty limbs; funny little black dolls with shiny ebony skin and plaited skirts of rushes; toy reindeer from Iceland; French dolls dressed in peasant costumes; staid Puritan youths and maidens; toy money banks shambling along on uncertain legs--all represented in this magnificent review. White pigeons poured from the castle windows; balloons suddenly seemed to be everywhere.

Before Bunny was aware of what had happened, he was floating atop a huge crimson-colored balloon--laughing and screaming in delight as it bobbed and dived in the wake of the Toy Parade. Nearby was the Penny Man on a big green balloon. "Where are we going?" shouted Bunny, above the clamour of many tiny musical bands. And the copper-colored dwarf winked knowingly; "To a Christmas Tree Party!!"

And before further speech could be had, they floated right into the Palace of Merrymaking; right up to the most magnificent Christmas Tree Bunny had ever beheld. It was all covered with glorious ornaments and trimmed with ribbons of red and green entwined with popcorn streamers; silvery in the shining snow and icicle; ablaze with light and golden beauty. Bunny caught his breath; he had reached the height of emotion. All the Christmas ornaments in the world seemed to be represented. His heart was almost bursting with happiness. The Fairy Queen had indeed granted him a radiant sight; it was a scintillating spectacle.

BRISBANE MAN SEEN ON TELEVISION:

Our own Kenneth Hart, son of Mrs. Lillian Hart of Brisbane, sang two numbers on the Del Courtney "Hoffman Talent Search" program, on KPIX-TV last Sunday, May 20th. Ken made a very good appearance on the program, and was in excellent voice. Even if enough votes are not sent in to enable him to win last Sundays contest, we are hoping that someone saw and heard him who can give him that necessary "step up"--which is all this talented young man needs now---as he already has the voice and the appearance which should carry him far on the ladder of success. GOOD LUCK, KENNY! WE ARE ALL WISHING YOU THE SUCCESS YOU DESERVE, AND SOME DAY WE WILL BE SAYING "WE KNEW HIM WHEN---!".

The Frosh-Soph won 15 out of 17 games this season, losing only to Serra 2 to 1, and to Washington, 3 to 2.
